This being my first contact with the subscribers through the Newsletter, I wish to share a distinct sense of pride and responsibility that comes with this assignment as Ambassador of Pakistan to the United States.

Pak-US relations form a most resilient aspect of Pakistan’s foreign policy. It has survived multiple tests of time, over the past seven decades. I have been entrusted with the mandate to deepen this bilateral relationship and was honoured to convey the same message to Honorable President Donald J. Trump upon presentation of credentials on April 24, 2017. Pakistan, over the past three years, has made notable achievements, both in the security and economic domains. The threat of terrorism has been effectively countered. The improved security situation has had a salutary impact on the upward economic trajectory of the country. It will be my onerous responsibility to bring the people of the United States up to speed with the positive reality of today’s Pakistan.

The Newsletter encapsulates a glimpse of my outreach to the U.S. Government, administration, think tanks, academia, media and legislators. Pakistan’s biggest resource in the U.S. is a proud Pakistani-American community, which has not only contributed to the development of this country but also continues to serve as true ambassadors to Pakistan.

The Embassy and the four Pakistani Consulates in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Houston stand ready in the service of our country and our community. Provision of efficient consular services will remain a high priority for us. Soon we will be launching an improved, user-friendly Embassy website. I look forward to receiving your feedback.
